David R. McAfee February 2, 2015 at 8:17 am Clicking the link sends me to the download page where I can select a product key. Adobe Premiere Pro CC v.2.0.0.212 Size:7.7 mb. Programs by Studio for Mac are supposed to work for free with a 30 day trial, but in this case, the free trial page is not functional - it just says "this application is part of the Microsoft Office applications family. To upgrade an Office application, visit the Office website." I'm running a Windows 7 PC with Microsoft Office 2008. Do you have any suggestions? A: See below for your answer Quoting from comments by the OP: I didn't know about "keygen" and so I just went into the "Creative Cloud" and changed the key there. I then changed the setting back to "none" (I saw it was "Adobe Key"). It works now. Thank you for your help! [UPDATE] Based on the comments by @Adam Echert from Adobe Forums I've been trying for the last few hours to follow the Adobe instructions on how to change my CC license key. I just keep getting a popup from "Creative Cloud" stating "An error has occurred while changing license key", and to try again later. I agree that the documentation is poor. However, Adobe Support Service can be contacted on the number +1-800-372-7625, and there may be more online help. * d + 2 . W h a t i s e u n g o f ( 6 ) ? L p = 1 - ( 82157476af
